International Ministries

Global Mission Offering of the Cooperative Baptist Fellowship supports all CBF field personnel, or missionaries, around the world.

Baptist World Alliance unites 196 Baptist groups. The BWA supports Christians, who live in difficult circumstances, networks with Baptist leaders from six continents, and strengthens our Baptist mission.

Rise Against Hunger seeks to end global hunger by partnering with local volunteers. Volunteers package meals, which are disbursed to places of critical need due to disaster relief, malnutrition, and hunger. They are used in school lunches, vocational training programs, orphanages, and medical clinics.

Mission Trip B AFBC is planning a summer mission trip along with exploring a long-term sustainable partnership with CBF field personnel.

National Ministries

Global Missions Offering of the CBF (United States) is the primary funding mechanism for CBF missions, caring for people in need and extending the love of Christ to others.

CBF Disaster Relief responds to natural disasters both nationally and abroad. They offer critical relief to the many threats and burdens following a disaster as well as cultivating a long-term presence during rebuilding.

McAfee School of Theology at Mercer University is a theological seminary located on the Cecil B. Day Campus of Mercer University in Atlanta, training and educating future ministers.

Baptist Joint Committee for Religious Liberty promotes religious freedom through education and advocacy. The BJC partners with various Baptist groups, supporting religious liberty for all people.

Baptist Seminary of Kentucky provides theological education on the campuses of Georgetown College and Simmons College, preparing and educating students for leadership in ministry.

Together for Hope is a rural development coalition servicing the 301 counties of persistent rural poverty in America.

State and Local Ministries

WE HELP Coalition of Auburn Opelika Habitat for Humanity is an ecumenical coalition of local churches, who pool their resources to build houses. It plans various fund-raising activities, like the annual Christmas Cookie Walk. Churches also provide labor when it is time to build a home.

Sowing Seeds of Hope (Alabama CBF) is a partnership between the people of Perry County and CBF. It is an ongoing commitment to help with housing solutions, healthcare assistance, spiritual renewal, and educational resources.

Community Market (East Alabama Food Bank) is a distribution pantry for those with food insecurity.

Alabama Possible strives to reduce poverty and its impacts through strategic partnerships with higher education institutions, community partners, policymakers, and faith-based organizations.

AFBC Brotherhood assists people both inside and outside the church with service projects, including handicapped ramps, painting, and light carpentry work.

Christian Women=s Job Corps of Lee County (AUMC) equips women with the life and employment skills necessary for self-sufficiency. It helps women develop life skills, setting personal, educational, and career goals.

AFBC Jail Ministry consists of a weekly Bible Study for the women prisoners at the Lee County Justice Center. At Christmas, the entire church helps to prepare a gift bag for each of the prisoners.

AFBC Conversational English provides weekly English classes and an opportunity for community during the semester to people who are adjusting to language and cultural barriers.

Esperanza House desires to intentionally develop and implement programs that meet the needs of low-income, Hispanic families and their children in such critical areas as mental health, youth development, childcare, education, and advocacy.

Alabama Rural Ministry coordinates home repair projects and children's day camps in rural areas of Alabama.
